

CAMDEN HONORS
FALLEN HEROES

Court Costing $175,000 Perpetuates Memories of 115 Men Dead in War

WOMAN'S NAME ON LIST

Elizabeth Weimann, of Haddon Heights, Red Cross Nurse, Has Gold Wreath

A series of seven victory arches, commemorating the sacrifices made by Camden County men in the war, have been erected in Camden. Each of the principal entrances to the city is watched over by one of the triumphant arches.

The main court has been erected on Broadway between Federal and Market streets. The names of the 115 Camden County men who made the supreme sacrifice in France will be inscribed in gold letters on the pillars of the arch. Each name will be surrounded by a gold wreath.

Above, on an arch connecting the pillars, will be written in large letters:
"Camden County's Heroic Dead."

A memorial building in the court is proposed. This building when completed will bring the cost to the memorial up to $175,000.

The organization of the victory jubilee committee and the warm welcome the returned soldiers have received are results of the untiring efforts of Mayor Eills and of Frank Sheridan, chairman of the Camden County jubilee committee.

Mr. Sheridan is preparing a history with complete details of the part that Camden County soldiers played in the war.

The name of one woman, a Red Cross worker who lost her life in France, is to appear on one pillar. She was Miss Elizabeth Weimann, of Haddon Heights, who died in Paris during the influenza epidemic. She contracted the disease while nursing soldiers.

Most of the dead were members of the famous 106th and 119th Infantry regiments which were so badly cut up in the last days of the war in the drive before Sedan.
In four days' fighting more than 400 from these units were killed in action and more than 1000 were wounded. The 119th was formerly the Old Third Regiment of New Jersey. The names of the men to be inscribed on the pillars follow:

Crosses for Twenty-seventh Sunday
New York, March 21.—Decorations awarded members of the Twenty-seventh Division by the American and French Governments for extraordinary gallantry under fire will be presented to the formerly New York National Guardsmen by their commander, Major General John P. O'Ryan, following a battalion review in Central Park next Sunday afternoon.

FRENCH PLAY DATE NAMED Cercle Francais of U. of P. Annual Production April 11

Announcement was made at the University today of the presentation of the annual play given by the Cercle Francais there and which this year will take place on April 11 in the Bellevue-Stratford Ball Room.
The play this year will be the modern "Mousetrap" by M. M. de Noailles.
The leading roles will be taken by Charles Berling, senior in the college, and Miss Dorothy Buckley, who is remembered for her performance of the leading lady's part in the play given by the Philomathean Society at the University last year.
The play is given jointly by the Cercle Francais and the Salon Francais of this city. The proceeds will be turned over to the French war relief committee of the Emergency Aid, Mrs.
Cornelius Stevenson is chairman of the committee. It is active in co-operation with E. B. Wright, a senior in the college, who is publicity manager for the Cercle. Posters advertising the play will be ready and distributed around the campus in the near future. The play itself is expected to include a large number of Philadelphia society women.
There will be dancing after the presentation of the play.

Canada's Bill Billion and Half Paris, March 21.—Canada has completed her war cost estimates for submission to the reparations commission.
It is understood, according to the Reuter correspondence, that the amount will exceed $1,500,000,000.

Deaths of a Day

NELSON H. COOKE

Clock Manufacturer Dies at His Home in Haddonfield Nelson H. Cooke, of the firm of B.
J. Cooke & Sons, north Third street, died yesterday at his home in Haddonfield, N. J. He had been prominently identified with the clock and watch business for many years. The business with which he was associated was founded by his father in 1823. He was a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Haddonfield.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bald

Mrs. Elizabeth Bald, widow of Daniel Bald, died yesterday at the age of ninety-one years. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society of St.
John's Evangelical Church, Sixth and Dauphin streets. The funeral will be held Monday at noon from her home, 2517 North Mascher street, with further services at 1 p. m. at the church. The interment will be made in Greenmount cemetery.

William Culbertson

After effects of influenza, from which he was a sufferer during the epidemic, caused the death of William Culbertson, turnkey of the Richmond and Kirkbride streets police station, early yesterday at his home, 2082 Locust street.
Culbertson was a member of the police force for the last fifteen years, during which he was several times the central figure in heroic rescues along the riverfront and during fires in the northeast section of the city.
Culbertson, a former physical instructor of the Police Bureau, never fully recovered from an attack of influenza some months ago. He had been in ill health since, but refused to remain away from duty.

Daniel Riggs

Daniel Riggs, of the firm of Riggs & Bros., clock manufacturers, of 210 Market street, died yesterday at his home, 2412 Spring Garden street. He was eighty-one years old. Death was due to old age. He had retired from active business life several years ago.
Two daughters, Mrs. David Wopner and Mrs. Harry L. Trainer, and two sons, Robert S. and Clarence Riggs, survive him.

Richard Cline is Dead

News was received in this city today of the death of Richard Cline, forty-one years old, in San Francisco. Mr. Cline was the husband of a Philadelphia girl, Miss Blanche Cram, who lived in West Philadelphia until the time of her marriage several years ago. He had been ill more than a year.
Mrs. Cline's mother, Mrs. Mary A.
Brines, and her sister, Mrs. William F. Brand, live in Haddon Heights, N. J., and it is expected she and her two small children will return to live there.

Alexander Harding

Alexander Harding, commander of the German Knights Templar, died of pneumonia Wednesday at his home, 2115 Germantown avenue. He had been ill only a week. He was forty-six years old.
Mr. Harding was a dealer in antiques and had been in Germantown for the last twenty years. He was born and raised in Ireland. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.
Funeral services will be held Monday at the First Presbyterian Church, Chelten and Germantown avenues. Interment will be in Market Square, Germantown avenue and School lane.

Frederick Augustus Schermerhorn

New York, March 21.—Frederick Augustus Schermerhorn, a capitalist and a former trustee of Columbia University, was strictly with anxiety last night while delivering an address at a dinner at the Union Club to the club's board of governors. He died a few minutes later.

HINT BLACK HAND
SLEW POLICEMAN

Patrolman Swierczinski Believed Victim of Italian Vendetta

2 HELD AS WITNESSES

Murdered Man Found on Saloon Steps With Body Bullet-Riddled

Mystery surrounding the murder of Patrolman Joseph Swierczinski, twenty-seven years old, 120 Kenilworth street, who was found shot to death at Ninth and Christian streets last night, has not been solved.

Two men arrested on suspicion were held under $500 bail for further hearing March 28 as material witnesses by Magistrate Coward in the Seventh and Carpenter streets station today. A third man was discharged.

The police believe, however, that Swierczinski was killed either members of a "Black Hand" organization or drug bonds, whom he had attempted to apprehend after the men had quarreled among themselves.

The body of the patrolman was found in the doorway of the saloon of William J. Beine, by Sergeant Harry Gallagher and Detective Fargo. They were summoned to the scene by an unknown woman who called the police station on the telephone and excitedly told of the murder.

Body Riddled with Bullets

The body was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital, where physicians said death had been almost instantaneous.
Five bullet wounds were found in his arm, chest, leg, knee, shoulder and back, six shots in all were fired.

According to the fragmentary facts obtained by Detective Hardman, Itago and Pagliotti, the dead patrolman was attracted by three shots fired on Ninth street between Fitzwater and "A" streets.
He gave chase to the four or five men among whom the shots were fired.
The pursuit ended at the doorway of the saloon, when one of the men turned and fired. The shot apparently caused the patrolman to turn, and the men shot him in all directions.

Witness Contradicts Bartender

James Hughes, bartender in the saloon, told Magistrate Coward today that the men did not run through the saloon.
Frank Cooper, a well-known neighborhood character, who was working in the place at the time, said four or five men ran through the saloon after the first shot was fired. They were held as witnesses.

Emanuel T. Dice, of Eleventh street near Wolf, who was arrested when he entered the saloon a short time after the shooting, was discharged.

The dead patrolman was attached to the Second and Christian streets station.
The shooting occurred just across the line, in the district covered by the Seventh and Carpenter streets station.
Swierczinski was married and had three children. He was appointed to the force April 25, 1917, and had already gained a reputation for the manner in which he had gone after Black Hand and other illegal organizations.

SLEEPS WHERE THAW DWELT War Not All Hard Work, Writes
Philadelphia Soldier

It is not all hard work for the boys in the army of occupation.
Such is the opinion of Corporal Robert Carey, a Port Richmond boy in the Fifty-second Pioneer Regiment.
Corporal Carey
wrote his Philadelphia friends to know that pleasure goes hand in hand with soldiering, and to prove it he has written a letter to a friend in this city in which he describes a ten-day's outing at Aix Les Bains.

"I am living in the hotel where Robert Carey, Harry Thaw was a guest many years ago," says the soldier, "so you can imagine that it is a mighty fine place. Aix Les Bains is a health resort and twenty boys from Company A, my outfit, are with me.
We are having a great time." Carey was promoted recently. "I am now a corporal," he says, "and getting along splendidly."

NORTHEAST TROLLEY
SERVICE IMPROVES

"Toonerville" Conditions Being Eliminated, Frankford Patrons Tell Commissioner

Improvement in the service of the Holmesburg, Tacony and Frankford Traction Company was admitted by Frankford citizens today at a hearing before Commissioner Samuel M. Clementi, Jr., in Room 456, City Hall. A Howard Jones, engineer of the Pennsylvania Commission, who was delegated to look into the situation, declared at the hearing that the service was being improved by no means perfected.

The hearing was the second resulting from numerous complaints by residents of the northeast of the poor service furnished, and the dirty, slow and poorly ventilated cars of this company. At the former hearing, Commissioner Clementi ordered the company to look into the matter of obtaining power from the Philadelphia Electric Company in place of their inadequate and old-fashioned plant. W. W. Montgomery, counsel for the company, declared today that such negotiations have been entered into.

Representative James A. Dunn and Robert T. Corson, an attorney, representing Frankford citizens, agreed with Mr. Jones that an improvement had been effected in the car service in the last two weeks, but insisted that bigger improvement was possible. "Thirty-four cars for sixteen miles of track are not sufficient," declared Mr. Jones.
The company's attorney agreed that more equipment is still necessary, but declared that it was being secured as rapidly as time and a poor financial condition permitted.

The city has a claim of $100,000 against the company, which will be decided in the near future.

WE not only save the time of busy executives by relieving them of all the details of their advertising, but we reflect the true policy of the house in all its policy.

DR LAIRD FAVORS
SUSPENSION SPAN

Penn Architectural Professor Wants River Bridge of Brooklyn Type

COST NOT ESTIMATED

Would Have Approach Terminal in City at Washington Square

Dr. Warren P. Laird, professor of architecture at the University of Pennsylvania, said today that it would be impossible at this time to estimate either the cost or the time required for building the proposed bridge between this city and Camden.

Doctor Laird favors a bridge of the suspension type, with a span of 1750 feet between the towers, and with approaches at Washington Square in this city and the Court House plaza in Camden. He made a study of the problem of placing the bridge and its approaches for the Pennsylvania and New Jersey bridge commissioners.

Compare New York Costs

"Reports have been published," said Doctor Laird, "showing the cost of the four bridges built by New York. These afford an interesting basis of comparison. The average cost of these four bridges was $22,625,000. The greatest variation in cost was eight and one-half millions of dollars. The Queensborough bridge cost eight and one-half millions less than the Manhattan bridge, which has a much greater span. These were the two most recent of the New York bridges. The Queensborough bridge is recently completed, while the Manhattan bridge is about ten years old.
"The report on the time required to build the bridges also is interesting, in that it gives us some basis for comparison in considering our problem here.
This varied from sixteen years for the Brooklyn bridge to eight years for the Williamsburg bridge.

Ten and a Half Years to Build "The average time was about ten and one-half years. The last three bridges built took between eight and nine years.

This time estimate is from the very beginnings of the work until the bridges were thrown open for traffic." Doctor Laird recommended that Washington Square be chosen as the Philadelphia terminus of the bridge rather than the alternative site at Race street because, he explained, the greater cost of the real estate in the vicinity of Washington Square would be more than compensated by other advantages of location.

Phyisician Kills Aged Man

August Dittrich, seventy-nine years old, was found dead in bed last night at his home, 2922 West Dauphin street.
Death was due to apoplexy. Other members of the family traced an odor of escaping gas to the room occupied by the aged man, and, on investigating, found him dead in the vicinity of the gas. The police are said to be unable to explain the suicide theory.

ADVERTISING is not Black Magic.

It works with a gradual pull, not with a sudden jerk. It must build up character and confidence before it can build up business. Then, you have a building that is an institution. Confer with us!

For MEN to thoroughly appreciate the sterling worth of this new Oxford; to admire fully the manly, cleanly lines; to recognize the welcome softness of the genuine shell Cordovan—it is desirable that they see the shoe at first hand.
It's on display at all our three stores.

A smart feature, indicating newness, is the severely plain toe, almost military.

Splendid variety of cloth patterns and models, though only a few sizes of each kind—but every size in one style or another in the sale! A good number of staple blacks and staple Oxfords, some of them full silk lined and some silk faced to edge. Single-breasted and double-breasted models, young men's snug-waisted models, conservative models suitable for formal wear—blues, tans, grays, heather mixtures in knitted fabrics, beautiful herringbone patterns, fly fronts and button through fronts; crav-enotted cloth raincoats—Spring Overcoats for every taste, every need and every size, at prices that are less than we can reproduce them at today!
